The main content area displays the article's title, authors, and abstract. The title is "PLAYING NICE IN THE ORGANIZATIONAL SANDBOX: EXPLORING THE ROLE OF SOCIAL IDENTITY THEORY AS AN EXPLANATORY CONSTRUCT IN UNDERSTANDING NEGATIVE ORGANIZATIONAL BEHAVIOR". The authors are Kelli L. Fellows, Pfeiffer University and Lauren Presher, Pfeiffer University. The abstract is titled "ABSTRACT" and begins with the sentence: "A plethora of terms exist designed to capture a spectrum of negative interpersonal and small group communication behavior within organizations. From organizational bullying to mobbing to sexual harassment, each linguistic representation provides a symbolic framework to group various aggressive phenomena enacted by organizational actors. Collectively, the occurrences may impact a variety of organizational outcomes including employee retention, satisfaction, morale, productivity, and mental and physical health. The existing literature reflects numerous theoretical and applied approaches which address the phenomena in the quest to identify antecedents, prescriptive measures to minimize occurrences and perpetuation, and quantitative measure development to gauge event existence and impact. As a complement and extension to this body of research, the current study explores the explanatory value of social identity theory as a conceptual framework of understanding various intrapersonal, interpersonal, and small group communicative processes within organizational contexts. Specific foci include (1) occurrence, (2) interpretation, and (3) management of organizational actors' negative behavior against other organizational members. Further, the current study posits social identity theory's potential holistic contribution to inform organizational actor's (1) sensemaking of negative events, (2) naming (of said events), (3) disclosure, and (4) rights and/or available course(s) of action governed by existing laws, organizational policies and procedures, and/or

The main content area is titled "E-Resources > Databases" and features a warning message: "SYSTEMATIC OR SUBSTANTIAL PRINTING, COPYING OR DOWNLOADING IS FORBIDDEN DUE TO THE LICENCE AGREEMENTS! IMPROPER USE OF ANY DATABASES WILL BE RESULTED WITH CANCELLATION OF THE ACCESS." Below this message are two icons with red prohibition signs over them, labeled "FlashGet" and "GetRight". The text continues: "During the full-text download process, Please do not use third party download accelerator software. (Download Accelerator, Flashget, Getright, Mozilla Down ThemAll, etc.)" and "PLEASE OBEY THE COPYRIGHT LAW." A line of text states "I agree with the above rules and want to browse;" followed by two buttons: "The A to Z LIST" and "The SUBJECT LIST". The "The A to Z LIST" button is circled in blue. At the bottom, there is a note: "METU members can access to the electronic resources off campus by applying the steps as explained on Remote Access". The footer contains links for "About Us", "User Training", "How to", and "Contact Us", along with a list of services: "Quality Management System", "User Training Program", "Plan Your Visit", and "Address". The Windows taskbar at the bottom shows the time as 11:08 on 24.9.2014.

To access electronic resources provided by ODTÜ Library off campus, you can use different two methods.

1. With ODTÜ Library Access Method : ODTÜ faculty members, administrative staff and students need to login the "Off Campus Access Login" when they click on any kind of resources. Users will be asked to fill "Off Campus Access Login" when they access to databases or when they wanted to download full article, reached by using search engine on library main page. Typed data information will be valid for other resources while the browser remains open.

For any questions and concerns, please send an e-mail to lib-hot-line@metu.edu.tr

Note : Users without a Library account must apply with their ODTÜ ID card to Circulation Desk to create an account behalf on themselves..

2. With BIDB VPN Service : To use VPN service you can do settings related to your device.

For any questions and concerns, please send an e-mail to hotline@metu.edu.tr

Warning: For users using VPN, the connection speed per user is defined as 1 Mbps. For this reason, in the cases that VPN connection is not necessary it is recommended that you disconnect from your VPN connection.

For the security of the network and preventing the unwanted access to the network, an authentication system that runs on RADIUS had been implemented, and users have to register their MAC addresses at <http://netregister.metu.edu.tr>

There is currently two SSID broadcasts on every AP. First SSID is ng2k - which is short form of "network group 2000" - a broadcast without any encryption.

There is also a second SSID broadcast (namely eduroam) that runs with 802.1x and that's a part of the eduroam, which stands for Education Roaming. eduroam runs on a RADIUS-based infrastructure that uses 802.1X security technology to allow for inter-institutional roaming. For more information about this network and the details of how to set it, please go to eduroam page. Currently, there are over 400 access points running on a central control unit and these AP support 802.11 a/b/g/n standard.

Users without a wireless network interface card can borrow cards from the Library and Cultural and Convention Center with their ID cards. Unfortunately this service is available to METU students and personnel only. These cards are introduced to the authentication system beforehand and needn't to be registered.

People visiting METU can use the wireless service at Cultural and Convention Centre and guest houses by registering their MAC addresses. This is going to be a temporary registration and will be deleted after a predetermined time.

You can read an article on wireless networks in CISA prepared by METU CC Network Group at this address.
